

HOW DO YOUR MEMBERS REALLY FEEL ABOUT THEIR FINANCIAL SITUATION?

OVERVIEW

Is there a gap between how Australians feel about their financial situation and how secure they actually are? What is the role of superannuation in the financial comfort of Australian households?

Significant changes in savings and spending patterns are currently taking place within Australian households. On the one hand, Australian households have benefitted from relatively low unemployment and continued income growth; but the re-emergence of softness in property markets and marked declines in equity prices, as well as the general nervousness about the financial future – especially from abroad – has the potential to weigh heavily on the financial comfort levels of Australians.

Join ME Bank Chief Executive Officer, Jamie McPhee, in our first AIST Thought Leadership Lunch event for 2012 as he discusses the ME Bank Household Financial Health Dynamics Report which focuses not only on the current financial mindset and situation of Australian households, but also their superannuation status and retirement expectations.
